Bay To Participate In Hospitality Month

Bay St. Louis will participate in the sixth tourist promotion observance of "Mississippi, the Hospitality State" which will be held during the month of June.

Mayor John Seafide called a meeting Tuesday night at City Hall, Bay news and organization representatives were invited. The Mayor outlined the Hospitality Program which is entering its sixth year in this state. This promotion has helped raise the state's travel business to an estimated $271,000,000 last year, with prospects for an even heavier volume this year.

Mayor Seafide said "I personally feel very enthusiastic over the prospect of Bay St. Louis entering the Hospitality Month Observance along with the other 100 or more communities who have planned to be a part of this great advertising campaign for our cities and our state."

He further assured those present at the meeting that if the venture was undertaken, the City Council would do everything within its power to cooperate.

It was further suggested by Mayor Seafide that coordination of organizations be handled by the Chamber of Commerce.

Lambert Boyd, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said he felt the movement would stimulate a good will program among tourists, and promote business in the community. He agreed to undertake the coordinating program.

Among the representation present were several owners of pecan and candy businesses situated along US Highway 90. The Praline industry of Bay St. Louis is rated high in the nation. These men agreed on distributing souvenir pralines as an advertisement for this industry. During the designated time of the "Hospitality Month" observance, the miniature pralines will be given to tourists passing through the community.

It was assumed by the gathering present that the Bay St. Louis Lions Club would again sponsor a "Miss Hospitality" contest. Last year the Bay St. Louis entry was Miss Irma Joan Lee, who due to marriage was succeeded by contest runner-up Miss Geri Martin. Nationwide publicity resulted from the contest, with national publications and newspapers of many states carrying stories on the Hospitality program of Mississippi and the finalists in the Miss Hospitality contest.

In conjunction with the Hospitality program a Clean Up - Paint Up - Fix Up Campaign is being planned for the community. Representatives from the Bay-Waveland Garden Club and from the Property Owners Association felt those organizations would aid in this part of the observance.

The Agricultural and Industrial Board of Mississippi is sponsoring this campaign and communities entering will be eligible to participate in the Community Travel Development Contest for which $1500 in cash and other prizes will be awarded. The winner automatically will be eligible to enter national competition for the title "Cleanest City in America."

In addition to regularly scheduled publicity through the Mississippi press and radio, the A & I Board has prepared 200 colorful Highway billboards proclaiming June as "Hospitality Month." These will appear on permanent billboards donated by the Mississippi Outdoor Advertising Association and its members serving this area.

Lumper stickers for use on out-of-state cars also are being made available and will carry the message "Visit Mississippi, the Hospitality State," to all section of the nation.

Service stations, motels, restaurants, hotels and other business concerns benefiting directly from the tourist business are being asked to utilize a check sticker which will be used by such firms in paying bills to emphasize the importance and widespread effect of the tourist dollar.

A meeting has been called by Lambert Boyd, president of the Chamber of Commerce, for Tuesday night, June 1, at 8 p.m. at City Hall. Decisions will be made then concerning the time for local participation in the observance and coordination of activities by business firms and organizations.

There is the clean, the washing and up, dusting, cooking, and and one other thing, keep a home livable, get out of sight and things. Often they things. Such is the tragedy I have to report. The first child was of his young parents proud grandparents. They were visiting and they had gathered on the sunshine to watch the walk and get around great occasion for the. # LITTLE THEATRE PRESENTS SECOND PLAY MAY 21 - 22

The second of the series of current season plays was presented Friday and Saturday nights at the Little Theatre on Boardman Ave. "Nothing But the Truth," a fast-paced comedy in three acts was ably directed by Mrs. C. D. Blair.

Jimmy Kramer, a newcomer to the theatre, shows promise of developing into a good actor. He is endowed with a natural stage presence, an instinctive flair of enjoying the giving of a good performance, and the gift of liking an audience. This with a good speaking voice should make Jimmy potential leading material if he manages to be around for future plays. Being graduated this week from Bay High School, he plans to continue his musical training in college. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kramer.

Dr. Bert Quigley, who cut loose for the first time in a comedy role, came across with a superior job of character acting. Doing bit parts in more serious plays in the past, Doc proved by force as a comedian and smart directors in the future will cast an eye at this young man when seeking male comedians.

Phil Allison and Mae Tudary as the husband-wife team gave an adequate interpretation of the roles assigned to them. Neither character gave much scope for ability, and it has been our pleasure to see both of these good performers in more suitable roles.

James Reese, another newcomer in the young man category, has a nice speaking voice, good delivery, and a lack of inhibitions that should make him into a good actor with more experience.

Patsy Shadoin playing the ingenue is pretty poised and with a full throat-voice that is extremely pleasing to the ear. Another of the younger set that shows promise of doing really good roles in the future.

Ethel Ann Raymond was given her first big chance in this play. Doing a difficult part, Ethel Ann gave a very nice performance as the rather silly spoiled daughter of the extremely rich.

Mabel and Sable, two Broadway playgirls, were done by Jackie Burkin and Elsie Grant. Jackie made her first appearance on the Little Theatre stage here and Elsie played her first role of consequence. They both turned in nice performances, and gave quite a few laughs to the audience in their convincing to obtain money on any pretense.

Roland Weston as the "innocent" bishop, interested in raising funds for a pet charity, brought forth hilarious laughs with his antics. Roland is one of the community's favorite comedians, and it is hoped that he will lend his talents more frequently to the acting group.

Rosemary Millinery, capably doing a bit part as a maid, made her theatre debut in this play, and possibly in the future better roles will show her talents to advantage.

GOOD WILL

promotes industrial development

The growth of all types of industry in Mississippi over the past decade has brought about a new era... a better life... for everyone who lives here.

Exploration for and development of Mississippi oil resources by the oil industry has played a significant role in the phenomenal expansion of the state's economy. GULF, having discovered eleven fields and having expanded its production to one-fifth of the Mississippi crude oil output, is proud to have had a part in the constructive activities of this vital industry.

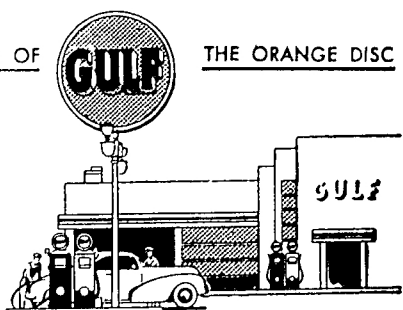

Like most other industries operating in Mississippi, the oil industry is relatively new here. The economic progress made by Mississippi through industrial development has only just begun.

Encouraged by the good will of Mississippi's citizens, the oil industry and other important industries will continue to invest private capital in Mississippi operations. GULF alone already has a $120,000,000.00 stake in Mississippi's future.

The good will that brings more job-creating, tax-paying private capital to Mississippi—and keeps it here—is indeed a "good sign for Mississippi."

Telephone People Help Mississippi in Many Ways

YOUR TELEPHONE company has one of the State's largest industrial payrolls and is one of its largest taxpayers—thereby contributing directly or indirectly to the prosperity of most everyone in Mississippi. Every year this becomes more important as we go on expanding the system to meet the continuing demands for good telephone service.

With the high cost of materials, supplies, labor and everything it takes to expand and improve telephone service, our construction program calls for more and more money from investors. To get them to supply it, we must earn a fair profit on money invested in telephone property.

TAXPAYER Southern Bell pays over $17 million dollars yearly in taxes to state, counties and cities of Mississippi enough to educate approximately 15,000 grade school children for a year.

EMPLOYER—over 5,000 men and women work for Southern Bell in Mississippi—are paid over 14 million dollars a year, which they spend mostly where they live for food, clothes, housing, etc.

'Ride Clear of Diablo' At Hi-Way Drive-In

Sunday and Monday

Fortunately for Hollywood, screen actors are a rule, the most mild-mannered citizens of the community when they are outside the studio. Dan Duray, costarred with Anne Murray, Susan Cabot and Alvin Keady in Universal International's Technicolor picture "Ride Clear of Diablo," playing Sunday and Monday at the Hi-Way Drive-In Theatre, is no exception to the rule.

Along with such screen villains as Paris Karlhoff and Richard Widmark, Duray is most affable off-screen person. In private life, he spends much of his time entertaining neighborhood kids along with his own two sons so they won't get into trouble. Or he's engineering a hiking party for the youngsters of players up the back field of his Hollywood Hills estate or raising horses in the Bahamas.

Thus it can be seen that Duray is a fastidious business proposition for the movie camera, but he makes it a real business.

As one of the screen's most consummate actors, he is usually studies the art of acting. And one of the characteristics to which he most attributes his success in such roles, as he puts it, is his ability to deal with multi-acting, taking a leading man in the stomach.

As the laughing killer in "Ride Clear of Diablo," Duray draws upon this skill at mixing humor with multi-acting by using that he's a clever, capable part of himself.

Featured in the supporting cast are Duray's associate, Karlhoff, Russell Johnson and Jack Elton.

Mr. W. L. Argus and Mrs. Elizabeth Weston attended the meeting of the South Mississippi Volunteer Service Council of the American Red Cross held at the Biloxi Veterans Administration Center Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of raising funds for the patients at the Biloxi and Gulfport veterans hospitals and at Keesler Field Hospital were made. Seven chapters were represented.

Herlihy Named Bond Chairman

The announcement of the appointment of Fred Herlihy, one of Hancock County's most widely known and respected citizens, as chairman of a committee to promote the sale of Savings Bonds was made today by Rex L. Brown, State Advisory Chairman.

Brown, in releasing the announcement, said that the Treasury Department is highly pleased to have men like Herlihy accept this responsibility. Herlihy being one of the vital needs of the community today, he said, "more Savings Bonds are being bought today than at any time since the war."

People know that money is safe, available if needed and that it is a good rate of interest. The Treasury's new improved E Bonds on which the interest accumulates and the new H Bonds on which interest is paid by check every six months are attractive investments.

The people do themselves and their children a real service when they invest in Savings Bonds.

Dr. B. L. Ramsey, owner of the business, said, "In securing Dr. Ramsey as manager of the men's department we feel we shall better serve the men of the community. His previous experience in both buying and selling men's clothes for men in the City of New Orleans certainly qualifies him for the position."
